

Mark Pottinger

Mark graduated from the University Of Kansas in 1984 with a Bachelor Of Science. After a stint with a business turn-around consulting firm, Mark attended the University of Colorado School Of Law, earning his Juris Doctor in 1988. Flying lessons came soon thereafter, with Mark eventually earning a private pilot certificate and an instrument rating. Mark has accumulated the majority of his flight hours in various high performance singles, using his pilot privileges for both business and pleasure, including volunteer medical transport through Angel Flight.

Professionally, Mark worked for a Federal trial judge right out of law school, followed by associate and partner positions in specialist litigation firms. From 2003 to 2013, Mark was a partner in a Denver based law firm where he specialized in aviation litigation, particularly cases involving accidents. It was during this time that Mark became interested in and began learning aviation accident investigation and reconstruction. In 2013 Mark started his own consulting firm specializing in accident investigations and reconstructions. Mark develops trial exhibits for parties involved in complex aviation litigation. Mark also consults with clients who are or expect to be parties to litigation as a result of aircraft accidents or aviation activities.

Mark is a graduate of the Aircraft Accident Investigation course at the USC Viterbi School Of Engineering, and is an Affiliate in the International Society Of Air Safety Investigators (ISASI).
